Strengthen Our Voice on Public Policy

Increased public awareness strengthens the profession's advocacy for vital legislative and regulatory issues. ASLA protects the practice of landscape architects and supports state licensure in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. Each year, every chapter participates in Advocacy Days in Washington D.C. to reach out to members of Congress in shaping federal policies on environmental protection, water resources, surface transportation, small business, the Historic America Landscapes Survey, security design, and many other issues.

Raise Awareness of the Profession

Raising the visibility of the profession of landscape architecture is ASLA's top priority. The Society focuses on increasing recognition for the profession within the design and construction industry, with public officials, and with the general public. A special emphasis is placed on building awareness of the value of hiring a landscape architecture professional. The annual awards program illustrates the remarkable work professionals and students are creating in all areas of practice. National Landscape Architecture Month is celebrated each April with public outreach activities across the country. Since ASLA increased its focus on public awareness six years ago, print media coverage of the profession has grown by more than 70 percent and television coverage has improved tenfold.
